

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An electronic device has an alphanumeric keyboard divided into two or more parts.

One of the parts is presented on a touchscreen and another of the part is placed on a touch-sensitive cover surrounding the touchscreen. The division of the keyboard into two parts allows the size of the keyboard to be sufficient for easy inputting of alphanumeric characters. The part presented on the touchscreen may be changed so that different sets of characters may be presented.